Re: United States v. Steven Duarte, No. 22-50048
Petition for rehearing en banc filed May 14, 2024

Dear Ms. Dwyer:

The United States' petition for rehearing en banc is currently pending. As the petition explains, the panel incorrectly held that 18 U.S.C. § 922(g)(1) violates the Second Amendment. The United States respectfully calls the Court's attention to two recent cases.

First, in United States v. Rahimi, No. 22-915, 2024 WL 3074728, at *11 (June 21, 2024), the Supreme Court held that 18 U.S.C. § 922(g)(8)'s prohibition on firearm possession while subject to a domestic-violence restraining order is constitutional because "[a]n individual found by a court to pose a credible threat to the physical safety of another may be temporarily disarmed consistent with the Second Amendment." Rahimi upheld § 922(g)(8) based on analogies to historical surety laws and "going armed" laws. The Court explained: "Section 922(g)(8) is by no means identical to these founding era regimes, but it does not need to be." Id. at *9. Instead, § 922(g)(8) is "relevantly similar" to founding-era laws because it "restricts gun use to mitigate demonstrated threats of physical violence." Id. at *11.

Rahimi explained that "some courts have misunderstood the methodology of [the Supreme Court's] recent Second Amendment cases" to "suggest a law trapped in amber.” 2024 WL 3074728 at *6. But it explained that “the Second Amendment permits more than just those regulations identical to ones that could be found in 1791.” Id. And it faulted the Fifth Circuit for “read[ing] Bruen to require a ‘historical twin’ rather than a ‘historical analogue.’” Id. at *11 (quotation omitted). As explained in the government’s rehearing petition, the panel committed a similar error in this case.

Second, the Third Circuit applied plain-error review when rejecting an unpreserved Second Amendment challenge to § 922(g)(1). United States v. Dorsey, No. 23-2125 (3d Cir. June 24, 2024). Accordingly, the panel’s application of de novo review to Duarte’s forfeited Bruen claim now conflicts with decisions from two other circuits. See Pet. for Rehearing 18. The Court should vacate the panel decision and grant rehearing en banc.

Respectfully submitted,

s/William A. Glaser
